GUIDED MISSILE INTELLIGENCE COMMITTEE

DAILY DIARY

19 February 1959

I. CCPC MEETING

At the CCPC meeting on 19 February, General Davis of the Army led off the discussion on the "Allocation of Responsibilities" paper, which had been referred to the CCPC by the USIB, by stating that he did not wish to pursue the ^{argument} ~~Army~~ as to "who owns them" to any greater length but desired to get on with the job of locating units and sites. He stated that personnel in his office had prepared a briefing on the possible locations of sites, based on US thinking as to where we would locate launching sites if we had the problems and geography of the USSR. Mr. Amory agreed with General Davis' statements and requested that a briefing be provided at the next CCPC meeting on 26 February.

As the above action bears directly on the responsibilities assigned to GMAIC, I requested of Major Clark that GMAIC be permitted to review the briefing prior to it being given to CCPC in order to keep the line of responsibilities clear and to assure that CCPC was provided with proper material.
